States of Incarceration is an exhibition and series of programs created by over 500 students and community partners in 17 states. The exhibit explores the roots of mass incarceration in the United States through local case studies and opens a national dialogue on what must happen next.

From January 22 to March 9, 2018, States of Incarceration will be on display in Douglass Library and open to the public during regular library hours.

Classes, student groups, and other interested organizations are encouraged to schedule a guided tour of the exhibit, which will be led by three Aresty Undergraduate Research Assistants being trained as docents and dialogue facilitators.
