Panelists representing a university press, commercial press, and the library perspective:

Micah Kleit, Director, Rutgers University Press; Mary Al-Sayed, Commissioning Editor in Sociology, Anthropology, and Migration Studies, Palgrave Macmillan; Jeffrey D. Carroll, Assistant Vice President for Scholarly Communication & Collections, Rutgers University Libraries

Description:
Many authors wish to open up their books to a global readership and have chosen to publish them in open access formats. Do commercial publishers and university presses provide open access options, and what are the costs? Does an open access monograph have more research impact than a traditionally published scholarly book, and does the editorial process differ? Do libraries make available open access monographs if they are already available from Google, and what are other roles are there for academic libraries? This event will be targeted mainly at faculty and students in the social sciences and humanities, and will allow plenty of time for engaging with our panelists after their presentations.

Location: Alexander Library, 4th floor Lecture Hall 169 College Ave, New Brunswick, NJ 08901

RSVP: http://www.tinyurl.com/oaweek2019

Sponsored by The Rutgers-New Brunswick Libraries Scholarly Communication Team

Contact:
Laura Bowering Mullen
lbmullen@rutgers.edu
848-445-5914