Maxine N. Lurie is an early American historian who has taught and written about New Jersey history for over 30 years. She is the author of numerous articles and has edited several books, including The New Jersey Anthology, Mapping New Jersey, and New Jersey: A History of the Garden State. In her talk, Lurie will demonstrate how and why materials she found at SC/UA have changed the planned content of her book, Taking Sides in Revolutionary New Jersey: Caught in the Crossfire, which will be published by the Rutgers University Press.

Research Salons are informal talks by researchers who have used SC/UA for their projects. Presenters will speak about their research and reflect on how the library’s rich resources have contributed to their work. The Salons will take place several times a year on Friday afternoons.
