Hear from four previous Open and Affordable Textbooks award recipients about how they redesigned a course to use open/affordable course materials (rather than a traditional textbook) and what effect that had on their teaching and their students’ success.

Then learn how to search for open textbooks and other open educational resources (OERs); how to find and use permalinks for library-licensed materials; and how to place items on Reserve at the Libraries.

Audience: Anyone interested in OERs and the OAT Program, especially any instructor interested in applying for the $1,000 OAT award (March 30 deadline).
